

Brief Introduction

Main Content

Statistics in this chapter mainly show the development of health, social services and undertakings for disabled people.

Statistics for health mainly include basic statistics on health, the total health expenditures, the number of medical and health institutions, number of medical technical personnel, number of ward beds, works of hospitals, main health indicators of Beijing, and so on.

Statistics for social services mainly consist of grass-roots social work, adoption institutions, social relief, and marriage registration.

Statistics for disabled persons mainly include information on rehabilitation, training, employment, poverty alleviation, social security and aid for right protection of disabled persons.